FAA system outage causes thousands of flight delays and cancellations across the US

Due to an outage of the Federal Administration Aviation's system, about 1300 flights have been canceled and 9500 have been delayed on the last Wednesday in the US. Most of these flights were domestic flights but a lot of American airline companies like United Airlines and Delta, were touched. The hypothesis of a damaged database file is the most plausible and the possibility of a cyberattack has been discarded.
